SUMMARY

We found that most of the grave-markings were dated between 1800-1900. Most of the men died at a late age but quite a few women died at a young age probably because of childbirth. A lot of the children died before the age of 5.

We also found that many of the families in Greenfield have ancestors in this cemetery. This means that more and likely the first settlers were here around or a little before 1800.
